The Quality Advisory Board invites to a seminar

Approaching Internationalisation from a Qualitative Perspective

Uppsala University has high goals when it comes to internationalisation. In research to strengthen its position as a leading international research university, and for education to offer programmes of the highest national and international quality, develop an international dimension, educate for a global labour market etc.

The university is also active in a large number of international networks, exchanges and collaborative projects both within education and research, and these are initiated and run at different levels, from the university management down to the individual employee.

Which opportunities and difficulties does this ambition regarding internationalisation entail? How is the quality of research, teaching and learning affected? What quantitative goals are realistic?

The Quality Advisory Board invites Uppsala University employees and students to a seminar on these important issues. The seminar is in English

When: Wednesday 6 February 2019, 13:15-15:00 hrs
Where: Blåsenhus, Betty Pettersson-room

Opening speech:
Marcus Lindahl, Section Dean for Engineering Sciences
Megha Nandkumar Bendre, doctoral student, Dept. of Neuroscience
Kay Svensson, University Director, International coordinator

Moderator: Torsten Svensson, Chair of the Quality Advisory Board, Vice-Rector of the Disciplinary Domain of Humanities and Social Sciences

The seminar is aimed specifically at teachers/researchers, students and those responsible for internationalisation. Others with an interest in the subject are welcome.

Register through the Employee Portal, under Education - Courses, seminars and conferences. Deadline for registration is 31 January.

Welcome!

The seminar is part of a seminar series with the Quality Advisory Board as organizer. The focus is on university-wide issues related to quality in research and education.