To the person to be photographed

If you consent to publication of a photograph of you, you have the right to have the photograph deleted at any time. However, previously completed printed matter will not be recalled or destroyed. You may contact the Communications Division by telephone on +46 (0) 18 471 00 00 or by email to kommunikation@uadm.uu.se. If you have any questions about personal data processing, please contact our Data Protection Representative: dataskyddsombud@uu.se.

Uppsala University markets the University by means including social media based in third countries. In several cases, the necessary data protection measures do not exist between the company and the EU/EEA or between the company and Uppsala University. It therefore cannot be guaranteed that Uppsala University will be able to prevent use of photographs published in these media other than that agreed under current contracts. Uppsala University therefore requires your express consent to this transfer, where applicable, of your personal data (photograph/name).

As a person whose personal data is processed by Uppsala University, you are a “data subject” and have several rights:

Right to access personal data
As a data subject, you have the right to know whether the Data Controller (the University) processes personal data that concerns you. To find out whether Uppsala University processes your personal data and, if so, the lawful basis for doing so, you may request a register excerpt via our Data Protection Representative: dataskyddsombud@uu.se.

Right to rectification
As a data subject, you have the right to rectification of inaccurate personal data about you, without undue delay. With consideration given to the purpose of the processing, you also have the right to completion of incomplete personal data.

Right to restrict data processing
As a data subject, you have the right, under certain circumstances, to request restriction of the processing of your personal data. These circumstances include that you believe the personal data are inaccurate and want the data to be rectified. You may then request restriction of processing while the accuracy of the personal data is verified.

As a Data Controller, the University is required to inform any parties to which personal data have been disclosed (if such has occurred) if the data subject has requested restriction of processing of their data.

Right to withdraw consent
After you have given consent, you also have the right to withdraw consent at any time, if you so wish. You can do this by notifying the party that processes your personal data that you wish to withdraw your consent.

Right to erasure
As a data subject, you have the right to have your personal data erased in certain circumstances, without undue delay. For example: if the lawful basis for processing your personal data is consent, you have the right to erasure of your personal data if:

- The personal data is no longer necessary for the purpose for which it was originally collected.
- You withdraw your consent to processing.
- Your personal data is processed for direct marketing purposes and you object to this.
- Your personal data has been processed unlawfully.
- The personal data must be erased to comply with a legal obligation.

However, there are exceptions. For example, if processing is necessary to exercise other rights, such as the right of freedom of expression and information; to comply with a legal obligation; to perform a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of public authority.
Right to lodge a complaint with the Swedish Data Protection Authority

If you believe that Uppsala University is processing your personal data in a manner that violates the Swedish Data Protection Ordinance, you can lodge a complaint with the Swedish Data Protection Authority, which is the supervisory authority. The Data Protection Authority will consider all complaints and thereafter determine whether an investigation should be initiated.
